“ I was watching Catfish on Hulu and they dedicated season 6th 4th episode to him. I remembered that show. His entire family was wholesome and I loved the way they lived and how kind he was to the show's cast, the girl he was talking with, even to the family's pets. It's clear heaven gained an angel. RIP.

“ This is quite belated, but still fresh in my mind. I remember when we went to buy your GMC, I had been trying to talk you into it for months, we went to every car yard in the area, sat in every GMC and test drove atleast one from each place, this is when I realised just how extra you truly are. I remember all the voices and pretending like you were on a Walky talky, anything to make me laugh or smile. I also remember when you took me gun shopping and taught me how to shoot, it's probably one of my fondest memories of you. Always thinking of you, I'm thankful for all our memories

“ I was cleaning my home today and had Catfish the tv show on in the background. For whatever the reason, I got drawn in to the episode that featured Brian. Long story short, I felt so sorry for him. My stepfather fought in Vietnam and also suffered from PTSD. When I did a Google search to find out how he was doing, I was saddened to see articles that he had passed. I was saddened by the news. I am so sorry for your loss and I pray that his family is doing okay. I thank him for his service. May he RIP amongst the angels.

Like some others that have left a comment here, I was watching his Catfish episode, went to Google to see what happened, and found the very unfortunate articles on his passing. My heart broke for him during his episode, as my father lost his leg in Vietnam after stepping on a landmine, and still suffers to this day from PTSD, although he tries to hide it. I was shocked to see "Brian" was taken in a bike accident. Please accept my deepest sympathies, and all my hugs and prayers for his family and friends. I hope he was able to eventually find love and happiness. Xoxoxo

My thoughts and prayers go out to Brian's family and friends. I've seen the episode of Catfish where Brian was featured. Being a military vet suffering with PTSD this particular episode touched me deeply. I have been catfished many times and I could relate to Brian. I recorded the second airing of that episode. I was watching the show on TV today and I saw a Memorial tribute to Brian so I researched to find out what happened. I was devastated to read what happened to him. I pray that he find love in Heaven. He deserves to spend eternity with an Angel. Thank you for your service Brian!! Fly with Angels!!

“ Brian was full of life. He became an instant friend and insisted that we go fishing - something I had not done in years. That trip to the stream that next day was better than a fancy vacation and reminded me how to enjoy the simple things in life. He also reminded me to thank God for these blessings of life, like the simple opportunity to wade into some water and catch some fish.

I was so proud when I heard Brian went into the military because I know he felt a sense of duty and patriotism. Bryan, I will be praying for you as you step into eternity. I will also be praying for Ms. Connie and your brothers and your whole family.*

*“ Brian has such a sweet soul, but only the closest family and friends that knew him a long time realized how deeply he loved everybody. He was reluctant to reveal that part of himself to many people. I knew Brian since he was about 9-10 years old and I always told his mom that his eyes were like the eyes of the actor, Omar Sharif. It hurts my heart that he is no longer with us, but I will always hold on to the memory of how special he made me feel as a friend of his mom. Connie, I will be praying for your recovery of this devastating episode in your journey. Only God is the answer for your strength.
