“ Being his oldest son I have a lifetime of memories but the one I'll hold close to my heart happened two nights before he went to be with Jesus. He had just been told that he was terminal right before I got to his bedside with my younger brother John. He grabbed my hand and asked if I new what was happening. I assured him I did and that it was gonna be ok. I reminded him that he was born again and that the price had been paid in full. The only thing left to do now was to go on and collect the prize. He smiled big and squeezed my hand even harder. Praise God I am so blessed.
